

Blogging Permission Slip

Please print, have your parent sign and return to Mrs. Ward by May 20.

Students may choose to keep an online blog instead of a hard copy journal. The requirements for the two are the same, it is just the format that is different. Working on a digital platform allows students to express their creativity in different ways and share and collaborate with others. Student blogs will be viewable by teachers and students at ACDS. Students are encouraged to read and comment respectfully on the blogs of teachers and other students. Student blogs will be monitored by teachers and all comments need to be kind, constructive and respectful.

My Child _____ has my permission to keep his or her summer reflection journal in the form of an online blog. I understand that this means:

1. He or she will attend a workshop at ACDS to set up the blog.
2. The blog may be viewed by others in the ACDS community, but not by the general public.
3. It is my responsibility to monitor my student's activities while they are working on the internet.

I _____ wish to keep a blog this summer instead of or in addition to a hard copy journal. I will attend the blogging workshop to set up my blog and will comment respectfully on the blogs of other students and teachers.
